Livio

CHALLENGE

How can Livio make the value of an API easier to understand?

Music may be a universal language, but an acronym like API is not. Livio needed to help customers understand what an Application Programming Interface (API) does and why it matters.

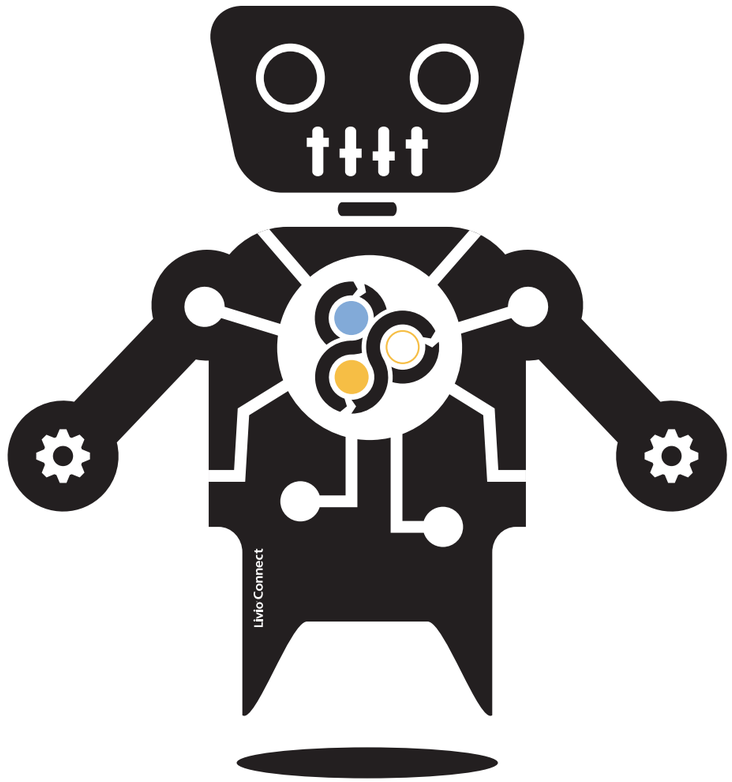

APPROACH

Give Livio a spokesbot. I created the Livio Robot as a friendly brand ambassador to translate tech jargon into approachable language and embody Livio's "More Music, Less Work" motto.

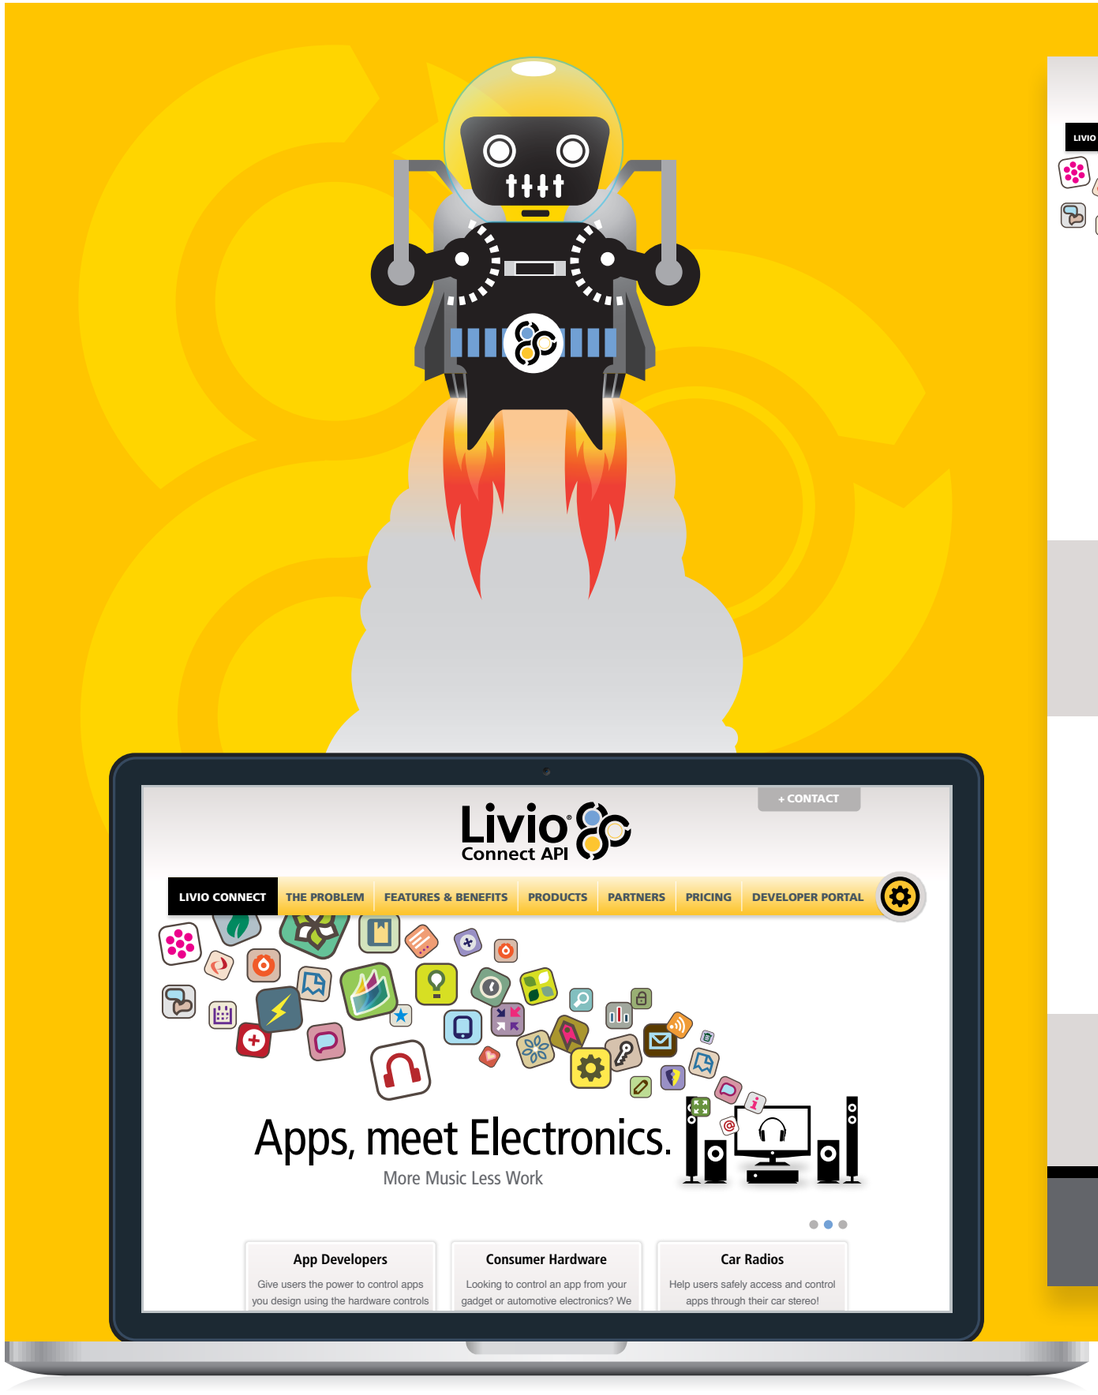

OUTCOME

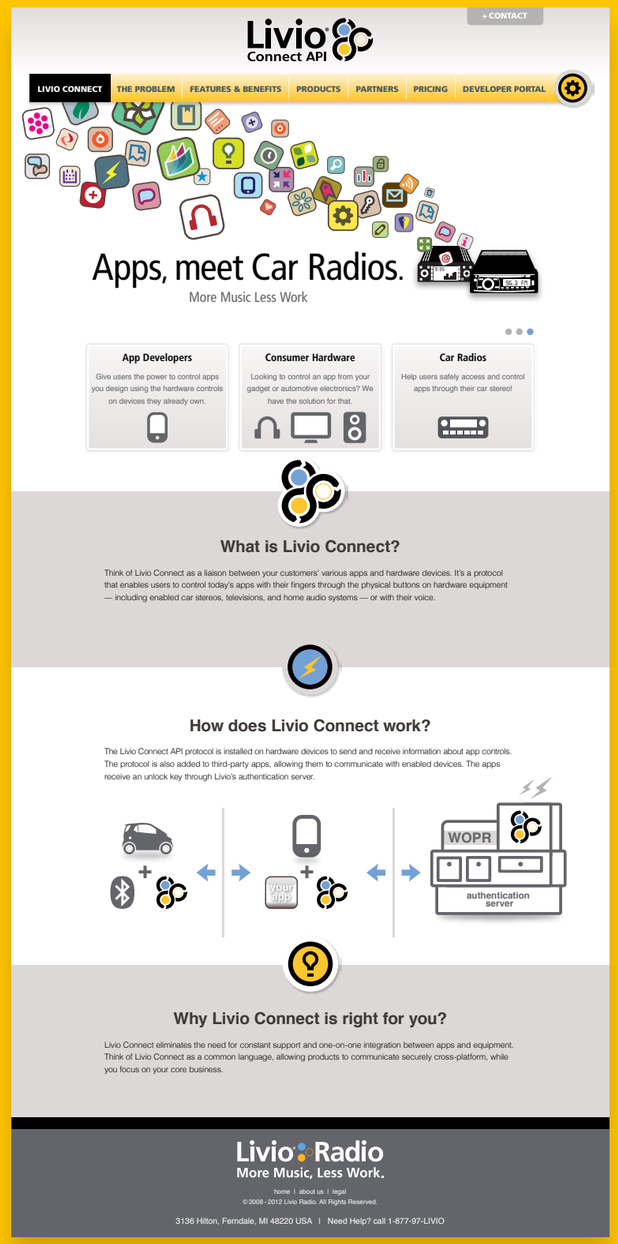

Livio Connect established a distinctive identity as the company moved from internet radio to connected software. The Robot made Livio's technology feel approachable as it shifted into automotive connectivity.

In 2013, Ford made its first technology acquisition in 13 years and purchased Livio to advance its connected-car technology.

What is Livio Connect?
Think of Livio Connect as a liaison between your customers' various apps and hardware devices. It's a protocol that enables users to control today's apps with their fingers through the physical buttons on hardware equipment — including enabled car stereos, televisions, and home audio systems — or with their voice.
How does Livio Connect work?
The Livio Connect API protocol is installed on hardware devices to send and receive information about app controls. The protocol is also added to third-party apps, allowing them to communicate with enabled devices. The apps receive an unlock key through Livio's authentication server.

Why Livio Connect is right for you?
Livio Connect eliminates the need for constant support and one-on-one integration between apps and equipment. Think of Livio Connect as a common language, allowing products to communicate securely cross-platform, while you focus on your core business.

Tome Software

CHALLENGE

How can Tome stand out in a crowded IoT market? After Ford acquired Livio, its founder set out to build a different software company. In a crowded Internet of Things (IoT) space, Tome needed a unique brand personality — one that gets noticed, wins clients, and attracts talent eager to build what comes next.

APPROACH

Take what worked at Livio and make it uniquely Tome.
Drawing on the power of a brand mascot, I created the Owl to embody intelligence and curiosity, giving Tome a unique voice: smart, playful, and anything but expected from an IoT company.

OUTCOME

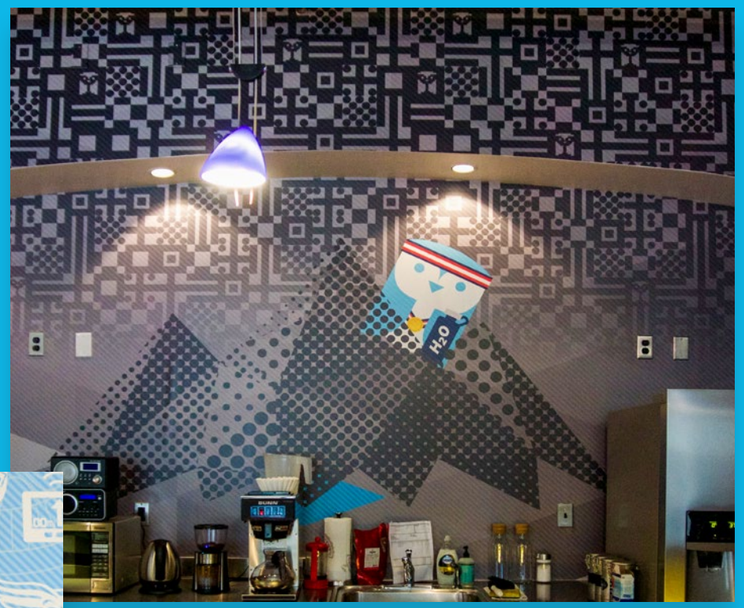

Tome stood apart, attracting top talent and winning work from companies like Ford and Cannondale. Their fast growth soon demanded a larger home, giving me a blank canvas to make Tome's culture visible. I filled the workspace with graphics inspired by the team's passions for cycling, music, technology, and gaming, making their new nest unmistakable theirs.

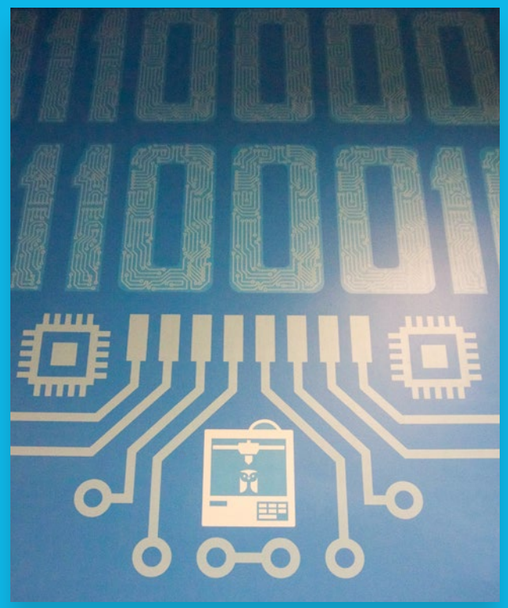

Tome, once a startup built to stand apart in IoT, became part of something bigger in 2023 when Valtech acquired it.

CHALLENGE

How can a search-and-rescue concept win over Ford stakeholders? Tome wanted to get buy-in for a search-and-rescue (SAR) app that could track drones and coordinate with professionals and volunteers in the field.

APPROACH

Give stakeholders something real they could get behind. I used branding to make the concept tangible, using mood boards to establish the visual tone. The Owl became the recognizable SAR mark across the Mukluk e-bike, Bell riding gear, DJI drones, and app. I carried the same visual language into the UI, designing around chat, GPS tracking, point-of-interest pinning, and clearing searched areas.

OUTCOME

The concept helped Ford stakeholders see how drone-assisted search and rescue could work in the field, building confidence in its viability. The SAR project earned additional R&D funding.

Crescentia Coaching

CHALLENGE

How can a new coaching brand earn the trust of senior leaders and stand apart? Crescentia entered a crowded executive coaching space where credibility matters immediately. The brand needed to convey professionalism and trustworthiness without becoming corporate or blending in with other consultants.

APPROACH

Build trust without losing warmth or personality. I worked with the founder to shape Crescentia's brand, starting with mood boards to explore color, typography, imagery, and voice. From there, I designed an identity and site that reflected the perspective of a woman-owned consultancy while building credibility with executives and maintaining a human, approachable feel.

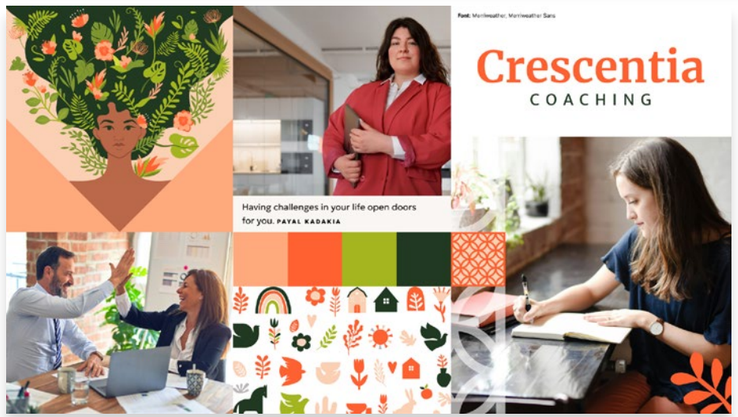

OUTCOME

Crescentia launched its woman-owned coaching consultancy with a cohesive and distinctive brand position in a competitive market. The new brand identity gave Crescentia a strong foundation to grow without sacrificing its personality.

Mindful leadership keeps you cool and energetic in any situation, so that you can make the best possible decisions.

CHALLENGE

How can Ford make moving through congested cities easier?

Urban travel often spans multiple modes. Ford wanted to explore how cars, e-bikes, and transit could work together to make city travel faster and more flexible.

APPROACH

Connect the journey, not just the bike. I designed the UI for MoDe:Link to help commuters and commercial users navigate multimodal trips — from car to transit to e-bike, or from a commercial vehicle to e-bike delivery. I made real-time routing, travel conditions, bike data, and rider feedback intuitive and consistent across devices.

OUTCOME

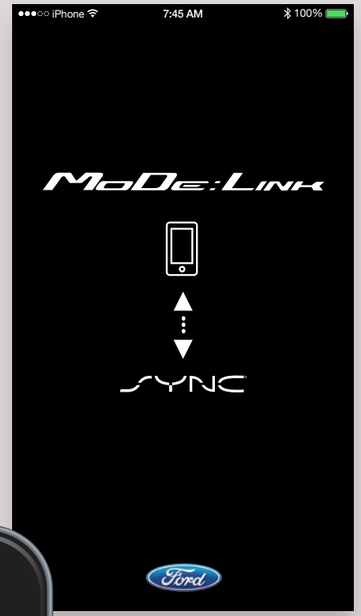

MoDe:Link debuted with the MoDe:Me and MoDe:Pro e-bikes at Mobile World Congress 2015, demonstrating Ford's vision for connected, multimodal mobility.

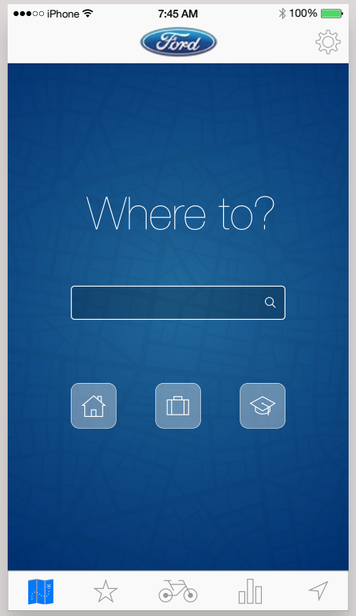

MoDe:Link received strong positive press and moved forward as part of Ford's Smart Mobility initiative.

Cannondale + Tome Software

CHALLENGE

How can Cannondale make its first connected bike experience simple and intuitive? Users expect Bluetooth devices to be discoverable and ready to pair. But with Cannondale's sensor, onboarding required an unexpected extra step: spinning the wheel to wake the sensor for pairing.

APPROACH

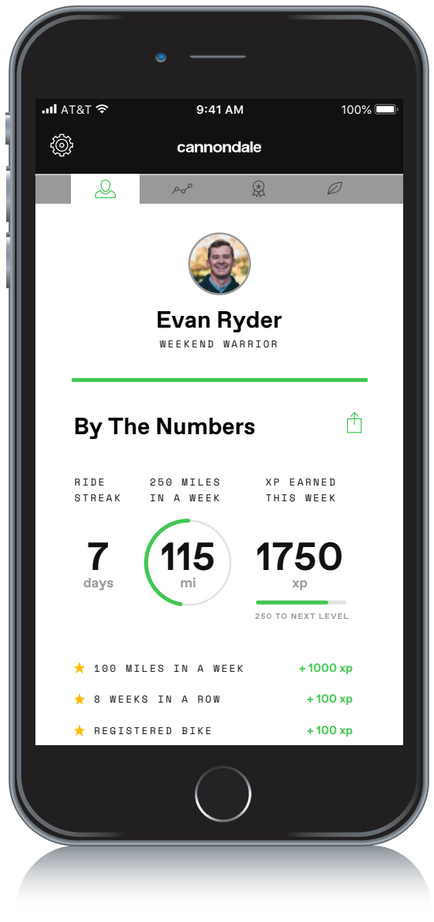

Create an easy-to-follow onboarding experience. I designed a guided flow, utilizing infographics to clearly illustrate each step in the pairing process, including spinning the wheel to wake the sensor. In addition to the onboarding UX, I designed the UI to make ride activity, performance data, bike information, maintenance resources, and service tools easy to understand and use, while maintaining Cannondale's distinctive black-and-white visual language.

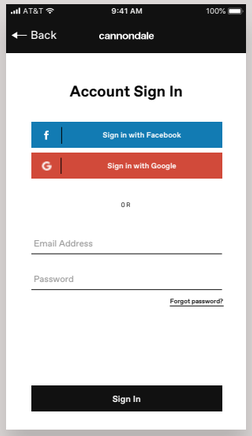

OUTCOME

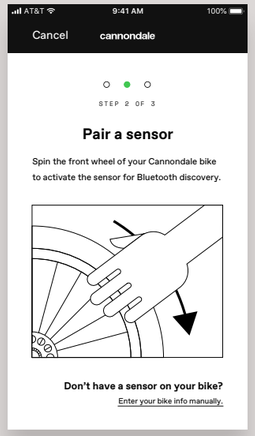

Cannondale successfully launched its first connected bike experience, giving riders an easier way to pair the sensor, track activity, and access useful bike information.

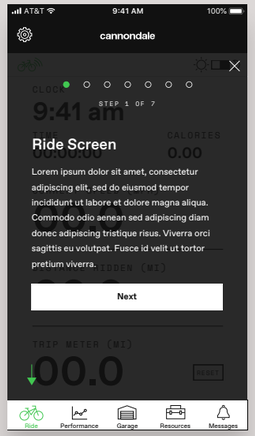

The app marked Cannondale's first step into connected cycling.

Tempur-Pedic + Nerdy Bunny

CHALLENGE

How can we create a premium interactive experience worthy of Tempur-Pedic's top-line products and Manhattan clientele?

Nerdy Bunny's design brief called for a digital experience that showcased premium sleep features with an intuitive UI for sales staff to control the bed and showroom environment.

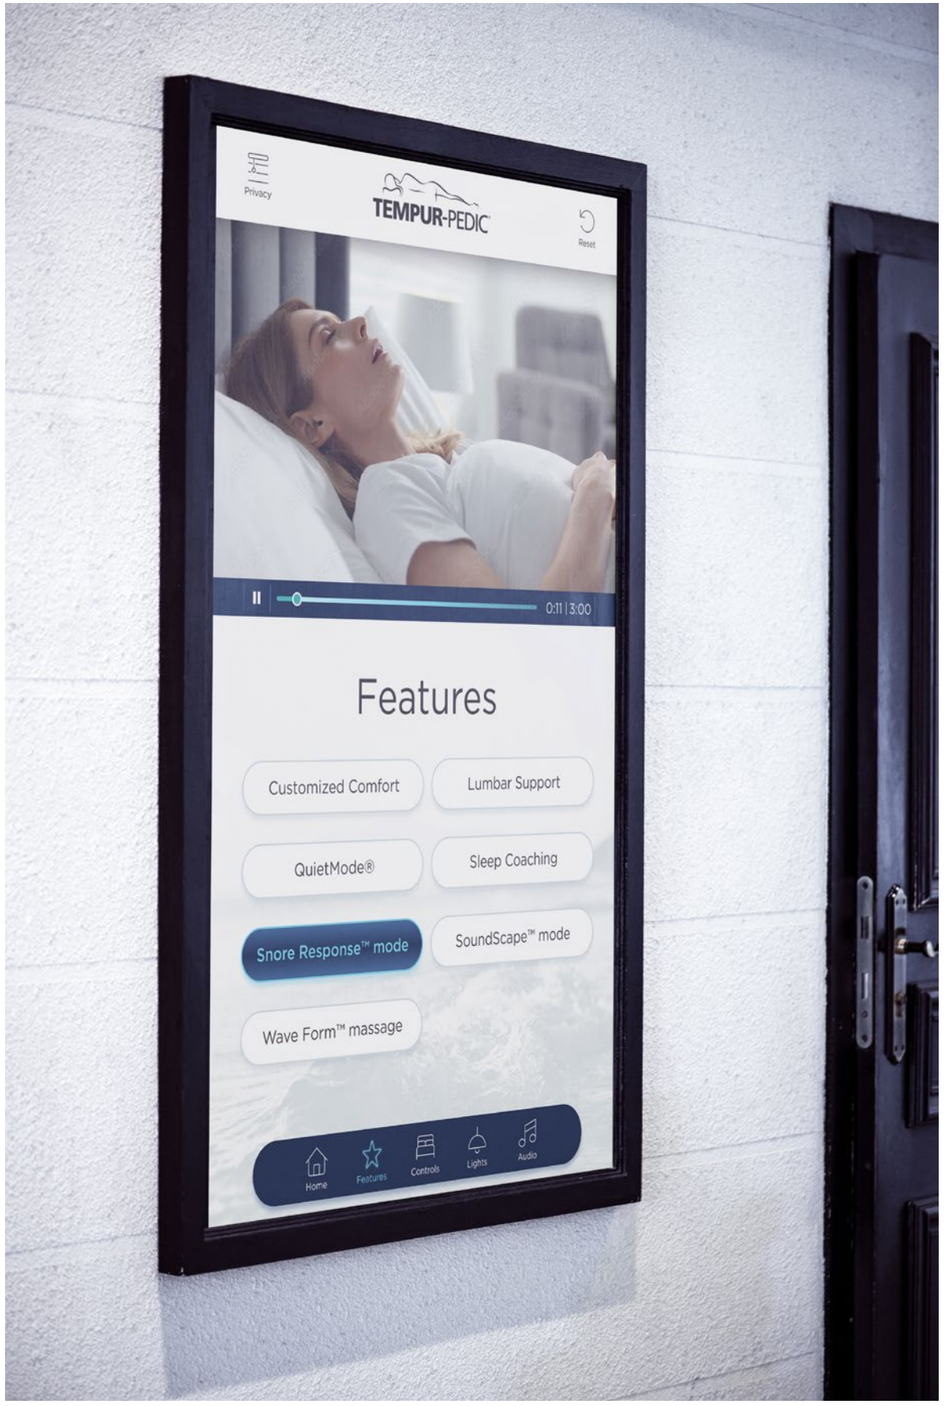

APPROACH

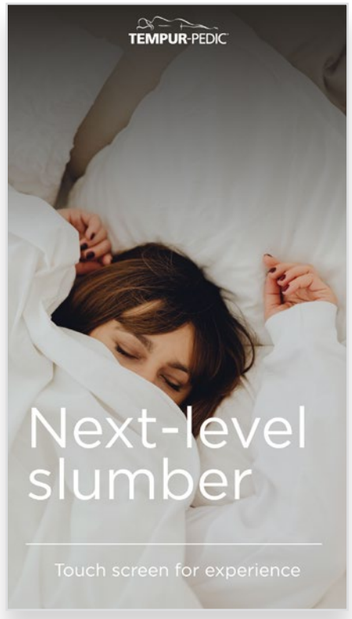

Create an immersive showroom experience without overcomplicating controls. I designed the kiosk UI around themed experiences (e.g., Beach Paradise, Rainforest Canopy, and Northern Lights) that transformed bed position, lighting, music, and room ambiance to showcase Tempur-Pedic's premium sleep products. The design reflected the brand's high-end positioning, while the intuitive UI gave sales staff control over the experience.

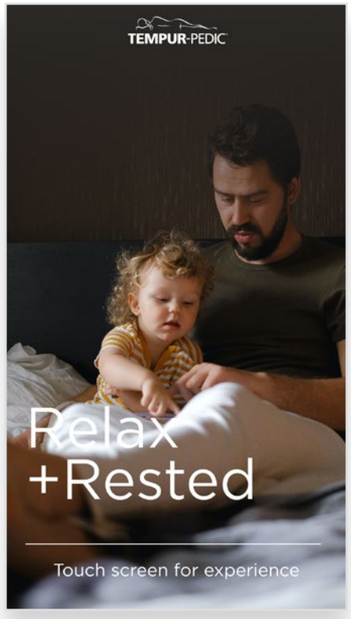

OUTCOME

Nerdy Bunny approved the design and moved it into development for Tempur-Pedic's Manhattan showroom, with potential for additional installations in other cities.

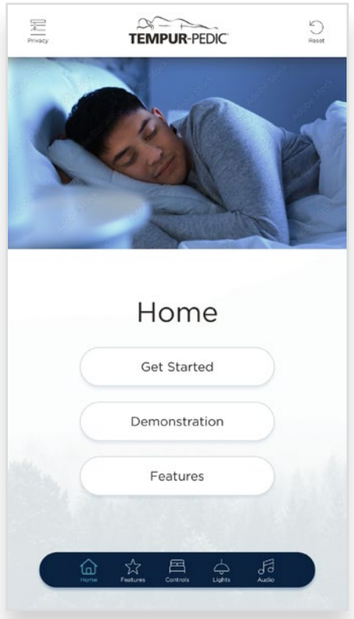

The kiosk turned Tempur-Pedic's premium sleep features into a memorable, immersive, interactive sales experience.

Fresenius Kabi

CHALLENGE

How can Fresenius Kabi turn its customer portals into a competitive advantage? As competitors introduced similar portals, Fresenius needed to make product resources easier for customers to find and manage while modernizing the site design to meet ADA standards.

APPROACH

Make the portals indispensable to customers. I redesigned the Amicus and Blood Center portals with improved navigation, stronger search, and multiple paths to key resources. I also added document favoriting for later download, along with flexible banner areas to highlight important updates and cross-promote related products. The refreshed visual design incorporated WCAG accessibility standards to support ADA compliance.

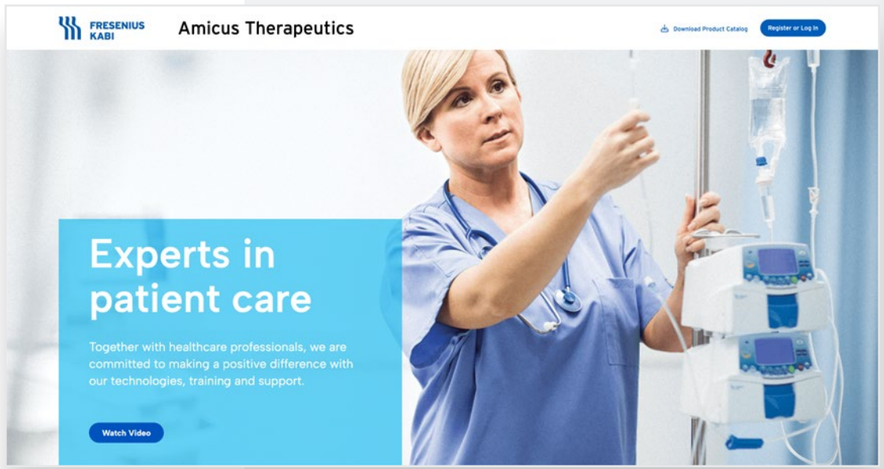

OUTCOME

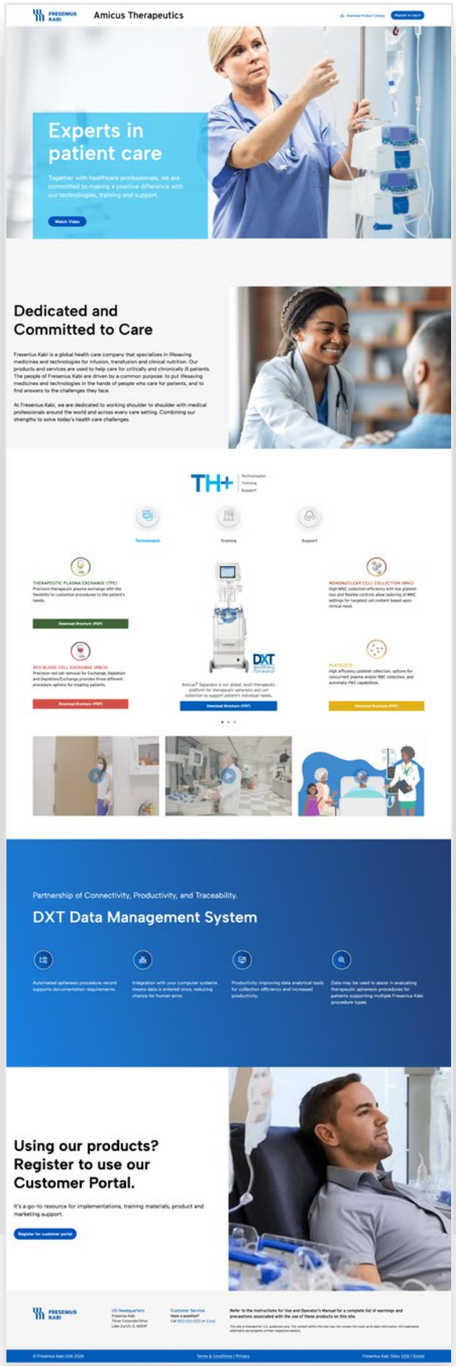

The redesigned Amicus and Blood Center portals successfully launched, giving Fresenius Kabi customers a more useful way to access and manage product resources.

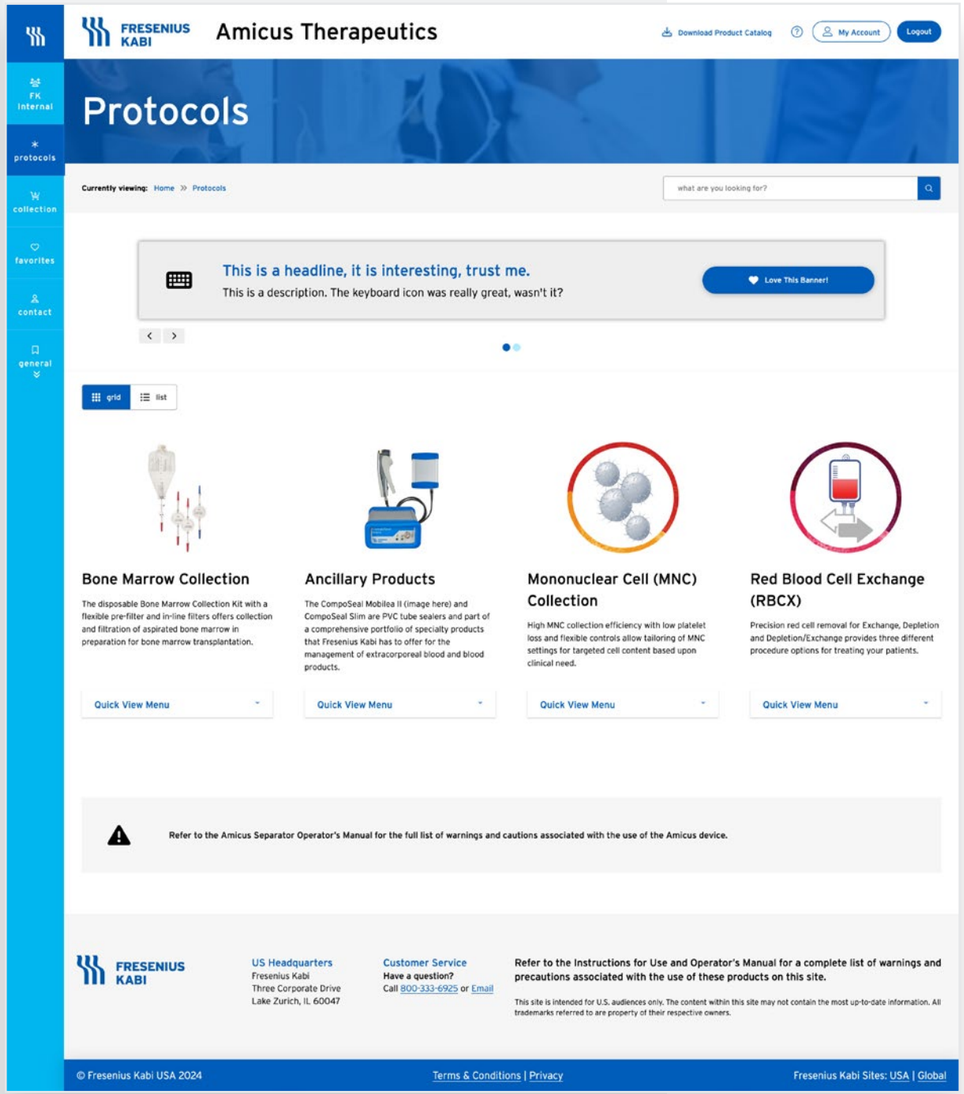

The newly improved portals gave Fresenius Kabi a clear competitive advantage while meeting ADA standards.

Better Windows for A Better World

YOUR HOME IS A QUEST FOR THE PERFECT ENVIRONMENT.

EcoTherm Windows bring you one step closer. They lend a timeless elegance to any interior, with unsurpassed protection against nature's extremes. So when energy prices rise or temperatures fall, you'll bask in the warmth of knowing you've chosen the very best. For a more perfect environment, inside and out.

DEEP ENERGY THINKING

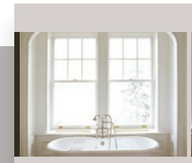

EcoTherm Windows belong to an emerging class known as super-high-performance windows. They embody some of the most advanced ideas in sustainable building today. Every feature – from the fusion of the frame to the seal on the sash – is designed to the highest national standards for thermal efficiency. They're a natural choice for deep-energy retrofits.

ENDURING QUALITY

All EcoTherm windows are crafted to the standards of the finest homes. Their extraordinary strength and high-grade components ensure decades of uncompromised performance. "With a best-in-class, lifetime limited warranty, EcoTherm Windows offer peace of mind for years to come."

A CLEAR ALTERNATIVE

In terms of sustainability, EcoTherm Windows rank among the world's greenest. All are made from 100 percent recyclable vinyl, and all are built for a lifetime of service. In a time when building materials compose a large part of our landfills, EcoTherm Windows offer a clear and abiding alternative.

4000 Double Hung

Timeless elegance and exceptional thermal performance make the 4000 series ideal for larger spaces and window arrays. They feature premium construction throughout, with a high-grade block and tackle balance for a lifetime of smooth operation. Quad weather stripping and a magnetic seal at the sill offer outstanding protection against thermal and wind penetration, and the tilt-in sashes make cleaning a breeze.

For style, quality and energy efficiency, the 4000 offers the best of all worlds.

Efficiency. Economy. Ecology.

KRYPTON GAS FILL

At the heart of the EcoTherm design lies a triple-glazed core filled with Krypton gas. The gas is three times less conductive than argon. The added density of Krypton also slows convection between the panes, minimizing hot spots at the top and bottom of the window where heat exchange can occur.

A BETTER FRAMEWORK

Few people realize how much heat is lost through window frames and sashes. With EcoTherm, however, that loss is nearly eliminated. All frames and sashes are formed from low-conducting PVC and filled with an advanced cellular foam that minimizes thermal transfer. This added barrier creates more comfortable living spaces and actually strengthens the window. It's a stronger, smarter framework for living.

MAGNETIC APPEAL

Another key aspect of the EcoTherm design is a magnetic weatherstrip where the window meets the sill. Like the seal on a refrigerator door, it creates a nearly impervious barrier to thermal and air penetration, for one more level of efficiency and comfort.

The colors of ecotherm

Our broad palette of traditional and contemporary colors opens a wide world of possibilities. All 14 colors are hand-applied and UV cured, for outstanding resistance to fading. Interior woodgrain laminates and brushed hardware are also available, to match nearly any design style.

Exterior Decorative Colors[1]

ivory · sandalwood · Ashstone · chocolate · terracotta base yellow · ivy green · hunter green · forest green · black light grey · colonial blue · base blue · autumn red

Interior Woodgrain Laminates[1]

[1]All representations of colors/finishes are mechanically reproduced and may vary from actual product.

DOE-R5 Glazing Package

EcoTherm's DOE-R5 Glazing Package* is ideally suited to deep energy retrofits. With a best-of-class R5 factor, it outperforms all Energy Star and Federal Tax credit requirements by more than 30 percent, for comfortable living on a more comfortable budget.

7000 Casement/Awning

Classic casement and awning designs find a new expression in the 7000 series. Like their predecessors, EcoTherm casements are prized for their ability to capture cool breezes. Unlike past incarnations, they excel at keeping the elements out, with a high-performance design that ranks among the world's most efficient. All styles feature high-grade hardware and high-end features, and all are available in single and multi-unit combinations.
